OLD TIMERS MEET.

FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET A GRAND SUCCESS.

The first annual banquet of the "Old Timers" Association at the Alexandra Hotel, Friday evening, February 26th, was far more successful than was anticipated and everything passed off pleasantly.

Owing to the fact that so many failed to give their names in until the night of the banquet, there was not seating accommodation in the large dining room of the hotel and it was necessary to have a second table.

Among those present, and the year they came west of the Great Lakes, were the following:

After all, at the first table, had done ample justice to the good things provided, Captain Cottingham, on behalf of President James Beatty, said, owing to another tableful of guests awaiting their turn, and the lateness of the hour, we would be compelled to dispense with speeches, except that he thanked all present for their attendance and hoped the banquet would be an annual event.

After the banquet a large number of the guests repaired to Alexandra hall, where dancing and music took place for some hours. Songs were rendered by W. M. Jarvis, R. E. Burgh, W. A. Cassels, and the Red Deer orchestra furnished a number of choice selections during the evening.

The gathering broke up by joining hands and singing Auld Lang Syne. Sympathy was expressed for Stage Handman, who was unable to attend owing to the illness of his wife.

Narolisse Marion took the cake as the oldest old timer in the west having been born 50 years ago in Manitoba. John Norquay came next with over 40 years' residence in the west. A. McFee came third with 38 years, and John Hallgren fourth with 38 years to his credit.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the News,
Dear Sir,—It is with much pleasure and encouragement that the people of this constituency are watching the evolutions of Dr. Clarke, M.P. for Red Deer, as manifested by his speeches at Ottawa.

Seemingly he first went into Parliament an independent Englishman with ideas foreign to both parties; now he seems to stand with the government and is fast becoming a self-respecting Canadian. It seems he no longer looks upon England as the one political school from which Canadians must take their political lessons and is beginning to realize the individuality of the Canadian, he is beginning to see the Canadian as a man capable of managing his own affairs in his own way and building his own part of the Empire. He begins to see the Canadian, while always loyal to the Motherland, is more interested in Canada than in any part of the Empire. He is beginning to take for the foundation of his speeches, not the customs that prevail in England, with occasional raps at the United States, but the application of Canadian ideas to Canadian conditions.

Now, this is a step in the right direction, the first step that all must take to become full-fledged Canadian citizens.

We are glad the Doctor has taken this step and we believe he will soon be as strong and as devoted a Canadian as he was an Englishman.

OUTRAGED ALBERTA.

The News has at all times forcibly, practically, and without any hesitation claimed Alberta was humiliated in the eyes of the rest of Canada when the Dominion Journal Saturday had a pointed article showing how Alberta is already losing money on the deal, and as time goes on the rest of the Dominion will reap a rich harvest at our expense. The article was as follows:

The spectacle of the Dominion government taking from the Province of Alberta more money annually for lands, timber, and mineral tax than it returns to the province in indemnity, contrasted with the spectacle of British Columbia showing a seven million dollar surplus and a six million dollar revenue, gives some idea of the enormity of the travesty that was perpetrated on this province under the guise of autonomy.

British Columbia has few resources that the province of Alberta cannot duplicate. The province of Alberta has resources in arable land which no country in the world can duplicate.

The province of British Columbia is not distressed by the raising of a seven million revenue. Its resources, practically speaking, are not diminished thereby. The province of Alberta looks forward to the budget of 1910 with apprehensions of deficit. It has, practically speaking, no resources upon which to fall back.

The province of British Columbia is wealthy beyond computation by the ownership of its lands, timber and mines. The province of Alberta has been beggared by the autonomy act by which these resources were taken away. The people of Alberta know where the blame rests.

THE WAY IT IS DONE IN SASKATCHEWAN.

Down in Saskatchewan, the Scott government spent during election year, 1908-9, $306,767 more than they had authority to do from the legislature. When the legislature met after the election, the government had provided a unique method to pay the enormous expenditure. A loan known as the public improvement loan for $400,000 had been arranged and this is to be paid off out of current revenue in eight years or in other words the current revenue is mortgaged to the extent of about, on an average, $80,000 per year for that time, and the usefulness of the public works department and other departments is impaired to that extent. Of course the province suffers, but then the elections were carried and the party safe for another term.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

When the local government begin to muzzle the press they are riding for a fall.

Lord Rosebery has announced he will move in the House of Lords for a voluntary reorganization of the Upper House. In doing so he certainly has taken the wind out of the sails of the Liberal party.

Fifty thousand dollars worth of real estate sold in a few days indicate that things are beginning to move just a little in Red Deer.

What the News wants to see is a good live 10,000 club organized in Red Deer.

Senator Talbot is nothing if not kicking at something. His last kick is in the senate, where he kicks because the C. P. R. is not building the Lacombe branch fast enough. He wants the government to decline to give the company an extension of time longer than one year before beginning construction of balance of line to Moose Jaw. The company is doing pretty well by Lacombe, and Peter might just as well save his breath, as he does not help matters any by his interference.

When the Rutherford administration came into power in 1905 we were assured there would be no necessity for going into debt for the next few years. Now that there is a forcible opposition in the house it might be just as well to know the amount of the debt the government has saddled on Alberta up to the present time.

Deposed Sultan Is Forced to Disgorge.

Turns Over $75,000,000 to the Government.

Vienna, Feb. 23.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Neue Freie Presse has had an interview with the minister of war in regard to the condition of health of Abdul Hamid, the former Sultan, who is now prisoner at Salonica, and who has been reported as crazy and also as dying. The war minister stated that the health of the former Sultan is perfectly satisfactory. His favorite wives are still with him. The stories about his return to Constantinople probably arose from the fact that three of his daughters, who are engaged to Eyyooy Pasha, were brought to Constantinople for their marriage. The war minister further said that Abdul Hamid had refused to the Turkish emperor his share of the fortune of about $75,000,000, retaining only a small sum for his personal use.

CUSHING AND BOYLE SPEAK.

Premier and Attorney-General Reply.

GREAT EXCITEMENT AT THE CAPITAL

Friday last was a red letter day in the annals of the Assembly of Alberta, as the long expected explanation of Mr. H. Cushing, ex-minister of Public Works, was given, and replied to by Premier Rutherford and Attorney-General Cross. Mr. Boyle also made a three hour's speech. Mr. Cushing's speech took up some four or five columns. He claimed the Alberta and Great Waterways railway deal was put through without his knowledge or consent. In speaking of the deal in agreements and specifications, he said:

"On the thirteenth of September, or about that date, there was a meeting of the cabinet at which were presented draft agreements and specifications. The specifications had been prepared by the engineer of the Alberta and Great Waterways railway company."

I thought this was a strange proceeding. The government was supplying the sinews of war for the carrying on of this undertaking, and I have intimated before, providing a large guarantee, at a high rate of interest, and yet, when they go to have specifications made in regard to how this work should be done, they go to the company's engineer for these specifications, notwithstanding the fact that there were competent engineers in the employ of the government at that time, who in my judgment, should have been consulted in connection with this matter. I objected to these agreements and specifications being put through in the shape they were in at that time, and they were not put through at that time."

"The attorney general and his assistants are paid by this province to safeguard its interests from a legal point of view. There were engineers in the employ of the government at that time, one of whom had spent some twenty-five years in the employ of the Canadian Pacific railway in the west, in construction and operation, and is known all over this western country as one of the most capable and conscientious men, in whom the people of this province have every confidence. I refer to Mr. John Stooks, deputy minister of public works."

He was in an interview in one of the local papers, that the president of the Alberta and Great Waterways railway company, intimated that he did not know anything about railway construction, but he would have some difficulty in getting the people of this province to believe that statement. The other engineer I refer to is Mr. John Chalmers, at present structural engineer for the government, who has had a long experience in railway location and construction, being for eight years actively engaged in this work for the Canadian Northern. It was he who drafted those twenty-six conditions of dollars, and that two roads at least were busily engaged in construction of railway lines, built with money received from the sale of government guaranteed bonds. The old legislature made the same mistake of a company appointed a board of directors, who afterwards dissipated the assets of the company. If, because I disagree with this railway policy, I am a traitor, then I prefer to be one."

HON. C. W. CROSS congratulated the opposition on the accession to their ranks of the member for Sturgeon. He spoke at length on the great resources of the north country. He defended the $30,000 guarantee because the Ontario government had done the same. He contended the government had done everything possible to preserve the interests of the people, and wound up by saying he was not ashamed of any railway policy his government had outlined. The debate was adjourned to Monday afternoon.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the News, Sir,—In your last issue a letter from Mr. Olson appeared. In the hope that Mr. Olson will see himself, some of his statements will be contradicted, and the positions in which they land him pointed out. Nothing herein is directed at Socialists. Everything is directed at such men as Mr. Olson, who never tire of asserting that no man can be a Socialist without thinking as they do, whereas the facts are just the reverse.

For myself I am strongly in favor of practical Socialism as it is being carried on pretty generally throughout the world, and counted myself a Socialist before Mr. Olson was born.

He says Socialists must not have anything to do with reforms. He says Socialists have a clear, concrete platform.

Therefore we are forced to conclude that the platform does not contain anything of a reform nature.

He says that if Socialists advocated reforms they would certainly forget their platform.

Might it not be well for such men to set it down in writing and deposit the document in some secure place? Mr. Olson is getting it being thus removed, they might be able to start acting and possibly thinking also and thus help to work out Marx' doctrine of evolutionary economics which Mr. Olson by his silence admits.

An evolution of this nature can only be brought about by a long course of thinking and acting on reform lines.

He says Socialists would be deceiving the people if they advocated reform. This is a vicious libel on Socialists in many parts of the world, as in America, where they are struggling for free speech, and especially in Germany, where they have been fighting and even dying for reforms only a few days ago.

He says that the working class cannot be robbed by anyone. He says capitalists pay working men all they can.

Since capitalists are admittedly good managers we must conclude that the condition of working men cannot be bettered; another libel. Contrast his last two statements with the following: "Under a system encouraging the most selfish and greedy of exploiters who pay all they can and rob nobody." Statements so contradictory must have originated in a mind curiously chaotic. The condition has possibly resulted from fear of forgetting the platform.

He says Marx must be vague and mythical because he agrees with Dr. Grant. There does not seem to be a trace of excuse for this abuse of Marx.

He says that Dr. Grant is not a Socialist and hence anything Dr. Grant may say on Socialism and kindred subjects is wide of the mark. Let us see where this lands him. Mr. Olson is not a capitalist, hence anything he may say on capital and kindred matters must be wide of the mark.

Marx was not a capitalist in the sense herein used, hence his entire 3,000 pages dealing with capital and kindred matters must be "wide of the mark." Yet strange to say Mr. Olson advises people to read Marx.

He says the Socialists are watching how members vote in parliament. This would seem dangerous and unnecessary work because they must necessarily deal with practical matters, think about them, decide which is a reform and which is not, and unavoidably create that horrible nightmare, a platform containing reforms.

Poor fellows, they will surely forget their platform which does not contain reforms.

Again, what is the use of taking such horrible chances? Socialists do not want reforms, their condition cannot be improved, and they are deceiving people by doing so.

Surely Mr. Olson is getting worse, especially since I infer he intends to punish members for not voting for things they are forbidden to think about.

He sends members to parliament pledged to maintain a totally vacuous mind as to reforms, and is going to visit them with most condign punishment if they do not recognize everything of that nature and vote for it.

There can only be one explanation of Mr. Olson's condition, that he is the best self-deceived man in the West.

He should now try thinking to "work up" instead of reading, of course starting with a few minutes a day and increasing slowly.

Mr. Isaacson has been converted to Marx' doctrine of evolutionary progress and has dropped his revolutionary doctrine.

It might not be presumption to advise Mr. Olson about his thinking, especially as he is so free with advice. Let him expend his first few thoughtful moments on the revolutionary doctrine with evolutionary doctrine.

He may be induced to follow Mr. Isaacson and Marx.

No more notice will be taken of such ludicrously contradictory statements as that in your last issue.

I apologize to Mr. O'Brien and retract my former statements.

Notwithstanding his assurances to me as to his position on practical questions, he has, in report is correct, demonstrated his practicality by going to parliament with a platform containing a big plank dealing with reform in the interest of the working man, and has offered to barter his support to the government in return for the adoption of his plank.

Things will certainly move when these two worthies meet.

Such renegade, degenerate tactics as platforms, planks, and reforms cannot possibly be tolerated, even in parliament.

Town Council.

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held on Thursday evening last, Mayor McKee in the chair, with the Councillors all present.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Mr. Botsford notifying Council of renewal of firemen's insurance.

The Indiana Lever Drag Company wrote offering the Council machinery.

Several letters were read re debentures.

Mr. Foley, through Mr. Botsford, asked for building done during the past year in Red Deer for Labor Gazette.

The annual letter from the consolidated Boards of Trade of Canada asking for memorial re Georgian Bay canal, filed.

COMMISSIONERS' REPORT.

Council went into committee of the whole on the commissioners' report.

Pursuant to your instructions we have renewed the insurance on 27 firemen. The premium is $8.00 each. We recommend that we be authorized to place $2,500 insurance on the new office building, and $300 insurance on the furniture therein, also to have $500 of the insurance on the firehall transferred to furniture, etc. in the fire hall. This will leave $5,000 insurance on the fire hall, which is sufficient.

We have looked over the fire hall with a view to providing more sleeping accommodation as requested by Chief Meeres, and recommend that we be authorized to have a partition built across the north end of the hay loft with a door into the main hall, and the hay chute placed in the south east corner of the loft. If this partition is made of ship-lap and comfort felt it should be sufficient, and should it be necessary to restore the hay loft to present size it could be easily removed.

We have carefully considered the question of having an additional cell built in the police station and recommend that we be authorized to purchase a steel cell as tendered by the Manitob Bridge and Iron Works in attached letter. The cell can be made with two blank sides and the cell bucket we do not need. With these changes of specification the cost would be about $200. This cell will go in the space left for the purpose and will last for years, and can be moved or added to at any time. It will cost within $75 of this amount to build one in, and it would not be nearly so good.

We recommend that the cost of cement sidewalks contemplated be charged two thirds against the property fronting or abutting on the walks, and one third against the town, and that if the work be proceeded with, the by-law be made on this basis.

Regarding the letter of the Western General Electric Company, dated 10th inst., regarding water agreement, we beg to report that we have taken the matter up with the solicitor, and he advises us that as the notice referred to was replied to on Oct. 22nd, 1909, no further reply is necessary.

We recommend that you appoint an acting mayor in case the mayor should be absent at any time, also that you appoint an assessment committee.

We submit for your consideration accounts certified correct. We submit for your consideration the following by-laws:

To license dogs.
To appoint an auditor.
To appoint a building inspector.

Pursuant to your instructions the Secretary sent the resolution re. port of entry to the Deputy Minister of Inland Revenue, Ottawa. The Board of Trade should also communicate with the Dept. and the member for Red Deer and keep the question before them.

We have discussed with the solicitor the question of exempting the machinery of bona fide manufacturing concerns in the Town of Red Deer from taxation and we find that the machinery must be assessed by the assessor but that the Council may at the court of revision reduce or strike out the assessment. We ask you to consider this question, and at the next regular meeting decide what course you will adopt, so that after the assessment is completed we will know the net amount approximately available for taxation and act accordingly in the preparation of the estimates.

Clauses one and four were laid over for further consideration. Clause five was amended by inserting the commissioners to acknowledge the letter received from the Western General Electric Co.

The report was then adopted. Councillor H. H. Gault was appointed acting mayor in the absence of the mayor on motion of Councillor Carscallen.

Councillors Gault and Welliver were appointed members of the committee for the year 1910 on ### motion of Councillor Hill.

AN ALPINE CLIMBER.

How a Girl Distinguished Herself on New Year's Day.

By CLARA A. BURTON.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"An old New Year's, but a grand one," thought Marcia Wells as she paused for a moment on a spur of the Alps and gazed down upon what seemed the world outspread before her.

Five years she had been traveling now into many remote parts of the world—studying, investigating, exploring—a strong, self confident and courageous girl from the first, and gaining experience and new ambitions with her progress until now, at the end of only five years, she was gaining a reputation as a mountain climber, a student explorer, a writer of travels.

But there was no exultation in her eyes as they looked out across the world, dwarfed by height and distance. With the conquering of obstacles was coming a broader, more earnest purpose in life than was above personality, and, moreover, over this day was a shadow that made even the conquering of the great heights of ambition seem trivial and small.

Even as they started up the mountain they had passed a white faced guide with a story of his party being caught by a snowslide and carried over a precipice. He was the only one saved and had been swept many miles down the mountain side, and saved himself only by the very brink of the precipice by cutting the connecting rope.

The saved bit of cord still dangled from his waist, overlooked and forgotten in the horror of the catastrophe. And among the party were friends and acquaintances of Marcia Wells met with on her travels. They had started to climb the very mountain she was going up, and my rapid progress she had hoped to meet them somewhere near the top.

And now that was left was the guide, stumbling and slipping down the mountain, white faced, hatless and disheveled.

They had listened to his story, their own faces whitening, but nothing could be done, so Marcia Wells had said she would go on and climb the mountain as planned.

They were now more than two-thirds of the way up, and Marcia Wells was standing upon a narrow shelf of the spur, so narrow that only her heels were in contact with the rock, and her back was calm and her nerves steady.

Many times had she been in such places before. On either side were the guides, grasping the rope which secured them together and holding it tight to assist her in rounding the almost sheer wall of the spur. But for a long time she stood there gazing, then slowly, inch by inch, for that was the only way, she continued to edge her way across.

"The algorithm would better have taken the other route," the advance guide said anxiously, "and even now he will not be able to go back. He is shunned even by the more reckless of the guides."

"It is the way the other party went," Marcia answered briefly. "Maybe it was a mistake on their part, but it is too late to change that now. They started this way and were intending to come the other way back, and the guide told us. It must have been near here that the slide struck them. Doubtless, from his story, they all perished, and he was the only one left. He is too late to change that now. Was this the second shadow he had seen to see—the confederate of him who had entered No. 9, a sentry to forestall interruption? If so, the fellow lacked discretion, though his determination that the American should not interfere was undeniable. It was with an ugly and truculent manner, if more wary, that the man closed in.

"I know. You clear out!"

He dug out a hand with the plausible design of grasping Kirkwood by the collar. The latter felt expected to extricate the arm, and instinctively landed his other fist forcibly on the fellow's chest. The man recoiled back, cursing. Before he could recover Kirkwood calmly crossed the threshold, closed the door and put his shoulder to it. In another instant, fumbling in the darkness, he found the bolts and drove them home.

And it was done, the transformation accomplished. His inability to refrain from interfering had encompassed a downfall, had changed a peaceable and law-abiding alien within British shores into a body, a trespasser, a misdemeanant, a—yes, for all he knew the contrary, in the estimation of the law, a burglar, prime candidate for a convict's stripes.

"The devil!" he whispered. "What an ass, what an utter ass, I am!"

Behind him the knob was rattled urgently to an accompaniment of feet shuffling on the stone, and immediately it felt as if a logical deduction from the rapping and scraping sound within the door casting the bell pull was violently agitated, without, however, eliciting any response from the bell itself, wherever that might be situated, after which, as if in despair, the outsider again rattled and jerked the knob.

He hesitated what it might, whether servant of the household, its caretaker or a night watchman, the man was patently determined both to get him out of and Kirkwood out and yet, curious to consider, determined to gain his end without attracting undue attention. Kirkwood, in the estimation of the law, the knocker's thunder as soon as the bell failed to give tongue, but it did not sound, although there was a knocker. Kirkwood, in the estimation of the law, the knocker's thunder as soon as the bell failed to give tongue, but it did not sound, although there was a knocker.

But his inferential analysis of this phase of the proceedings was summarily interrupted by that identical alien in a trice the house was filled with flying echoes, wakened to enormous riot by the crash and clamor of the knocker, and Kirkwood, in the estimation of the law, the knocker's thunder as soon as the bell failed to give tongue, but it did not sound, although there was a knocker.

Err he had time to wonder the racket ceased, and from the street filtered voices in altercation. Kirkwood, in the estimation of the law, the knocker's thunder as soon as the bell failed to give tongue, but it did not sound, although there was a knocker.

The seconds of one speaker were new in his hearing, stern, crisp, quick with the spirit of authority which animates that most austere and dignified limb of the law to be encountered in the world over, a London bobby.

"Now, then, my man, what do you want here? Come, now; speak up and step out into the light where I can see you."

The response came in the stifling snarl of the London ne'er-do-well, the unpropitious remark whose chief of caution seems to be to march in the ranks of the unemployed on the ocean skin of its annual demonstrations.

"Let me alone, carter? Ah! no, no, no, officer."

"Didn't you hear me? Step out here. Ah, that's better. No harm, eh? 'Per haps you'll explain how this carter's harm breaks' into unoccupied 'nesses'?"

"Gurrlaw, 'ow was I to know?"

"My man, 'e sees me expense free buprlaw! 'e cab door's shut, an' 'e says, 'My man, 'e sees, ye've got a 'ones free. 'ow docher work?' see?"

"'Ow can I? see I. 'Ere 'n I hout a job these six months, lookin' for work every day an' can't find it. See?"

"There was more, 't more whining explanations artfully tinctured with abuse, more terse commands to depart, the whole concluding with scrapping footsteps, thudding, and an other perfunctory rattle of the knob as the bobby, having shooed the putative evildoer off, assured himself that no damage had actually been done."

Then he, too, departed, satisfied and self-righteous, leaving a lady rightly and very grateful amidst court to pursue his self-appointed career of crime.

He had no choice other than to con tinue in point of fact, it had been instantly just then to back out and run the risk of apprehension at the hands of that ubiquitous bobby, who, for all he knew, might be lurking not a dozen yards distant, watchful for just such a sequel. Still, Kirkwood hesitated with the best of excuses. Measuring as he had found the sentry's extremely paralyzing, proof positive that the fellow had had no more right to prohibit a trespass than Kirkwood it commit one, at the same time he found himself paradoxically a prey to emotions of the utmost consternation and alarm. If he feared to leave the house he had no warrant whatever to assume that he would be permitted to remain many minutes unharmed within its walls of mystery.

The silence of it discomfited him by good measure. It was, in a word, an empty house.

Before him as he lingered at the door, vaguely discomfited by a wan illumination penetrating a dusty and begrimed front-hall, he saw a head stretched indelicately toward the rear of the building, losing itself in blackness beyond the foot of a flight of stairs. Save for a few articles of furniture—a tall table, an umbrella stand, a tall, dark clock flanked by high-backed chairs—it was empty. Other than Kirkwood's own constrained respiration not a sound throughout the house advertised its habitation, not a beat cracked beneath the pressure of a foot, not a mouse rustled in the watercloset or beneath the floor, not a breath of air stirred sighing in the stillness.

And yet a tremendous racket had been raised at the front door within twenty minutes two persons had been present. Kirkwood into the building. Had they not heard? The speculation seemed ridiculous. Or had they heard and, alarmed, been too terrified to make a logical deduction from the rapping and scraping sound within the door casting the bell pull was violently agitated, without, however, eliciting any response from the bell itself, wherever that might be situated, after which, as if in despair, the outsider again rattled and jerked the knob.

Before him as he lingered at the door, vaguely discomfited by a wan illumination penetrating a dusty and begrimed front-hall, he saw a head stretched indelicately toward the rear of the building, losing itself in blackness beyond the foot of a flight of stairs. Save for a few articles of furniture—a tall table, an umbrella stand, a tall, dark clock flanked by high-backed chairs—it was empty. Other than Kirkwood's own constrained respiration not a sound throughout the house advertised its habitation, not a beat cracked beneath the pressure of a foot, not a mouse rustled in the watercloset or beneath the floor, not a breath of air stirred sighing in the stillness.

And yet a tremendous racket had been raised at the front door within twenty minutes two persons had been present. Kirkwood into the building. Had they not heard? The speculation seemed ridiculous. Or had they heard and, alarmed, been too terrified to make a logical deduction from the rapping and scraping sound within the door casting the bell pull was violently agitated, without, however, eliciting any response from the bell itself, wherever that might be situated, after which, as if in despair, the outsider again rattled and jerked the knob.

He hesitated what it might, whether servant of the household, its caretaker or a night watchman, the man was patently determined both to get him out of and Kirkwood out and yet, curious to consider, determined to gain his end without attracting undue attention. Kirkwood, in the estimation of the law, the knocker's thunder as soon as the bell failed to give tongue, but it did not sound, although there was a knocker.

But his inferential analysis of this phase of the proceedings was summarily interrupted by that identical alien in a trice the house was filled with flying echoes, wakened to enormous riot by the crash and clamor of the knocker, and Kirkwood, in the estimation of the law, the knocker's thunder as soon as the bell failed to give tongue, but it did not sound, although there was a knocker.

Err he had time to wonder the racket ceased, and from the street filtered voices in altercation. Kirkwood, in the estimation of the law, the knocker's thunder as soon as the bell failed to give tongue, but it did not sound, although there was a knocker.

The response came in the stifling snarl of the London ne'er-do-well, the unpropitious remark whose chief of caution seems to be to march in the ranks of the unemployed on the ocean skin of its annual demonstrations.

"Didn't you hear me? Step out here. Ah, that's better. No harm, eh? 'Per haps you'll explain how this carter's harm breaks' into unoccupied 'nesses'?"

Good Reports for Ayreshires.

At the meeting recently held in Toronto by the Canadian Ayshire Breeders' Association, the secretary, W. F. Stephen, reported a greater enquiry for knowledge concerning Ayreshires from people not now breeding them, more sales are being made, more herds being established, more Ayreshires winning first honours in competition with other breeds, a higher class of exhibit at the prominent shows, and a greater interest in the record of performance test.
Ayshire breeders were becoming more enthusiastic and throwing off the timidity caused largely by lack of knowledge of the possibilities of Ayshire, which has hindered them in the past from booming the breed as its merits have justified.
Mr. Stephen reported that at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exhibition, where the dairy test was conducted in the Model Barn, the Ayreshires returned a profit of $40.69, the Jerseys $27.71, the Guernseys $11.34, and the Holsteins $1.53. Some good records were made in the record of performance test, "Primrose of Tanglewyl" (12,945) produced last year 13,536 lbs of milk testing 3.9 or 529 lbs fat, equal to 617 lbs butter, and a three-year-old cow "Canadian Princess" (20,103) produced 11,377 lbs milk testing 4.69 or 521.91 lbs fat, equal to 608 lbs butter.
It is records like these that make the Ayshire so popular, their wonderful ability to convert the roughest of feed to profit, their hardiness, their vigorous constitution and ability to adapt themselves to any climatic conditions, this is what is making the Ayshire the favorite dairy cow of all breeds.

Correspondence.
To the Editor of the News,
Sir—In your issue of the 9th Dr. Grant speaks of me as a dreamer. It is evident that he has been dreaming himself, as I never dreamed either Marx or his writings with him. That his statements to that effect are the results of a dream is the most charitable construction I can place upon them.
How simple, however, must Dr. Grant be to accept as final the alleged statements of two or three individuals and judge Marx by their instead of giving Marx a fair show and studying his works at first hand.
Dr. Grant is one of the kind that Huxley speaks of in his Lectures and Essays, see page 46. Dr. Grant endeavours to show that we revolutionary Socialists are sentimentalists. On the contrary we are practical in the extreme. We do not aim at such an impossibility as changing human nature; our whole appeal is to human nature which is essentially selfish.
Dr. Grant speaks of my fighting to a finish to prevent the construction of a platform. This is false. We already had a platform which we have still, and which is published in the organ of the Socialist party of Canada, the Western Clarion. What I did was to protest at Dr. Grant's presumption in endeavoring to take a part and have a voice in a convention of the Socialist party, of which he is not a member, to

Government and Grain Men Lock Horns.

Object to the Administration Appointing and Controlling the Government Elevator Commission.
Winnipeg, Feb. 21.—The government and the executive of the Grain Growers association have looked horns on the very important issue of the appointment and control of the commission which is to be entrusted with the administration of the government elevators when such shall have been instituted.
The government is insisting upon retaining the right to appoint and control the commission and the grain growers are determined to resist this, maintaining that the commission must remain absolutely free from political dominance if it is to be effective and permanent.
The determination has been expressed in a resolution which has been signed by the executive of the grain growers association and forwarded to the government following a series of conferences upon the matter which extended over several days and which failed to arrive at a compromise or a mutually satisfactory agreement.

which he pays no dues, and to which he affords no support. As to Marx teaching "sitting still," he taught no such thing.
He taught the working class to do, that their mission was to free themselves from the last form of slavery. Socialists are doing. We are organizing and disciplining ourselves in order that we may organize and discipline our fellow workers as increasing economic pressure forces them to unite with us.
What is Dr. Grant doing but talking and saying nothing?
It is evident that Dr. Grant wishes to pass as a Socialist, but he is so "practical" that he does what he stands for or what he suggests should be done. He just vapors about the "Socialism of Christ, why not the 'Socialism of Confucius' or the 'Socialism of Mohammed'?"
The last clause of Dr. Grant's letter is an example of his unadulterated gall. Here is a man who does not belong to the party presuming to offer advice as to how should it be. It is fortunate for the party that Dr. Grant is outside and we will take good care he stays there. If we accepted such as Dr. Grant would certainly have a party which would not know where it was, because its individual members would not know where they were. In the words of one of our poets: Bye and bye we'd a party have Which would be a sight to see There'd be every kind of faddist In rich variety. There'd be men on the make, up to every fake, There'd be persons on the bum, There'd be spinsters grim, with chances slim In the marriage mart become. Go to, Dr. Grant; you may be a good pill-mixer and handy with the scalpel, but as an economist or sociologist you are a huge joke.

A PROBLEM.
WHAT would you do with a million or spend it or lend it or give it away. Have a good time to the very last time. Making a splash and a corking display. Maybe you would burn it up doing good. Giving a boost to the cause in distress. Lifting the pack from some suffering being. Being first aid to the weak, more or less.
That would be cash for a sizable dash. That would be a million or two, but enough if you were careful and did nothing rash. On it to tack quite a peach of a bludge. You might even save a bit of a sport. Wearing a suit that was laid as a band. Feeding your face at the highest priced place. Laying on the very fat of the land.
Would you remember the friends who were true. When you were hustled and shorter than short. Sticking to them like a dime's worth of glue. Panning perfects and things that are true. Or would you pose with the end of your nose. Shining the air like a flag on a pole. Shunning the guy with a shine on his nose. When you had reached that detestable goal.
How do you know what you'd do with the dough? Calm yourself. Never a chance you will get. You may have money, a dollar or so—that is a good and a sensible bet. But it's a pleasure to go in a trance. Thinking of what you would do with the crown. Though you despair of a ghost of a chance. For but a fraction to star come across.

The Record Way.
A good story is being told on Alderman Housner—you know, that big, fat, old man who sits over on the right hand side and votes for all of the franchises. He would rather vote for a franchise than eat, and, indeed, that is how he is able to eat so well.
The other day he had occasion to go home during the middle of the day to get some important papers. But, although he knew the general directions and went to the right street without a guide, he couldn't find the place.
Did he ask the police to help him or look in the city directory? Not much. He knew an enter way. He waited until daylight and then went straight home. He knew it in the dark.

We are ready to forgive the most heinous offense when our rights are in no wise touched by them.
It sounds easy when we hear people say that a child should be trained in orderliness, but before one gets half through with the job one's own nervous system is in an alarming state of disorder.

Don't tell your ailments to your friends unless you want them to get back at you by insinuating upon your accepting their remedies.
Finding fault with your neighbors sometimes is only your sly way of boasting of your own qualities.
It is a good deal easier to raise a disturbance than it is to raise the revenue to defray the costs.
It is the experience of most of us that we go blithely along our way imposing day after day upon the rights of our fellow creatures and trampling on their feelings until some day for some trifling light an air they turn and rend us. Then we wonder what makes them so narrow and irrational anyway.

Some minds appear to be irrational because they are quick and others entirely logical because they are stupid.
It doesn't take any of us long to tell all we know. It is what we think we know that takes time, energy and hot air.

A PROBLEM.
WHAT would you do with a million or spend it or lend it or give it away. Have a good time to the very last time. Making a splash and a corking display. Maybe you would burn it up doing good. Giving a boost to the cause in distress. Lifting the pack from some suffering being. Being first aid to the weak, more or less.
That would be cash for a sizable dash. That would be a million or two, but enough if you were careful and did nothing rash. On it to tack quite a peach of a bludge. You might even save a bit of a sport. Wearing a suit that was laid as a band. Feeding your face at the highest priced place. Laying on the very fat of the land.
Would you remember the friends who were true. When you were hustled and shorter than short. Sticking to them like a dime's worth of glue. Panning perfects and things that are true. Mr. David Allen, who came out from Scotland to minister to the heathen in and around Everts, has had a call to a wider field, we understand, and was to preach his farewell sermon last Sunday. Although the weather was fairly fine the usual crowd did not turn up. In wishing him God-speed in his new duties, though the people of Everts, and especially the Blue Bell district, know what they are losing, they rejoice at his preference. Mr. Allen was a great worker for the cause; he even went so far as to live at Burnt Lake so that he should have further to go to and from his work and some of our friends at Burnt Lake inform us he was also an early riser, having been known to arise at 2 o'clock to start his days work, and we can assure him if he works as hard in his new sphere as he did here, he will reap a like measure of success.

On Wednesday morning, about 2 o'clock, the Brigade had a call to a fire at J. L. Crawford's residence. A team near the fireplace was found to be on fire. The firemen reached the fire in record time and in a few minutes had it under control, but it took some time to put it out without doing any damage to the building. Mrs. Crawford gave the boys a lunch after the building was safe. On Thursday morning about 4 o'clock the ceiling over the furnace took fire. Mrs. McKinnon's residence. The Brigade made a quick run and put the fire out in a few moments with the chemicals, very little damage resulting. In those two fires the Brigade has established a reputation that would be hard to beat for quick work.

DUBOIS CASE UP AGAIN.

MacDonald Gets One Year.

A special session of the Supreme Court opened in Red Deer yesterday before Judge Scott. The court is held for the purpose of re-opening the Dubois cattle-stealing case. A number of new charges have been laid against the accused and a large number of witnesses are in attendance. A. D. MacDonald, who was committed by Justice Mellor a few days ago, was found guilty and sent down for one year with hard labor. The young man was only about sixteen years of age, and came from Hillsdown. He passed a check on Mr. Morris, Merchant, Penhold, for $5.00, a ten dollar check on N. Murphy & Co.'s store, Red Deer, both signed by E. P. Cronquist. When the check was deposited by Mr. Murphy, the forgery was discovered and the prisoner traced by Constable Plant and arrested.

Cheese Meeting at Clearview.

An enthusiastic meeting of the farmers and dairymen of the Clearview district met in the schoolhouse on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 28th, to hear Mr. Miller, the pioneer cheese maker of the Red Deer district, speak in the interests of the Trimble Creamery Co., who are establishing a cheese plant in connection with their creamery.

The speaker outlined his system as in operation in his factory at West Red Deer, and the result of the meeting was that the farmers were of the opinion that cheese making during the summer and early fall is far more lucrative than butter making.

The principal drawback in cheese making in this province, says Mr. Miller, is to get a sufficient quantity of milk to run a plant up to its full capacity. Mr. Trimble stated that if the farmers would furnish him daily through the months of July and August, 8,000 lbs. of milk, he would pay $1 per cwt. for milk delivered at the factory for the whole season. If the patrons could furnish that amount he could not pay more than 90 cts. per cwt. during the above months and 95 cts. for the remainder of the season.

Therefore it is up to the farmers interested to furnish the milk. When it is known that, roughly speaking, it requires 10 lbs. of average milk to make 1 lb. of cheese and requires 25 lbs. of average milk for 1 lb. of butter, and that the Red Deer, who are selling at 12-1-2 cts. per lb., for Red Deer, and retailing anywhere up to 20 cts. per lb., and butter—well, we farmers all know—the inference is plain that, at present, cheese making is far more lucrative than butter making.

A. D. McKinnon, Wm. Cossins and Charles Foulds were appointed a committee, in conjunction with H. W. Trimble, to solicit patronage and work up milk routes. Mr. Trimble has at present the promise of some 400 cows.

The following resolution was carried unanimously at the meeting and was sent to Mr. Hutton, superintendent of the Experimental Farm, Lacombe:

"Dear Sir,—We, the farmers and dairymen of Clearview and surrounding districts, request that you erect a silo at Lacombe or some suitable place, for the purpose of ascertaining the value of oats and peas, as an ensilage."

"And we respectfully request that you undertake this experiment at an early date."

"Signed on behalf of the farmers and dairymen present by D. W. McKinnon, chairman, and J. H. Comfort, secretary."

(Note) An experiment of this kind is too expensive for the individual farmer, but if the Department of Agriculture can demonstrate that this province can produce a cheap silage that is superior for milk production, to our present system of dry feeding, the result will be a revolution in winter dairying and cattle feeding in Alberta.

J. H. COMFORT, Sec.

March came in like a lamb.

Mrs. L. E. Gosling left on Monday for a month's visit to her friends in Winnipeg.

Decision was given by Judge Lees in the case Kidd vs. Stephenson recently, tried in the District Court. A. T. Stephenson won his case, the plaintiff, Kidd, having to pay all costs.

A meeting of the Red Deer Union of the United Farmers of Alberta will be held on Tuesday, March 15th, when D. W. Warner, of Edmonton, will address the meeting on the subject of the proposed co-operative pork packing plant. Every farmer, especially members of the U.F.A., should be present.

Penhold U.F.A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Penhold Union No. 13 of the U.F.A. was held in the school house on Saturday, the 19th day of February, Pres. T. Paroels in the chair.

The secretary was instructed to procure quotations of formalin and order same; all members wishing to take advantage of this being asked to put in their orders on or before March 5th.

The resolutions on hail insurance brought up by the circular from general secretary were discussed, and plan No. 8 was adopted on motion of E. Carswell and J. Farrar.

The following resolution was also passed, on motion of S. Pye and J. Woods: That, in the opinion of this meeting, one of the reasons for the enhanced cost of hail insurance in the past year has been the fact that hail insurance inspectors have greatly overestimated the damage done, and that more care should be exercised in the appointment of hail inspectors.

The delegates who attended the convention at Edmonton were called on to give their report, and responded nobly.

S. Pye, J. Farrar, J. Woods and T. Paroels, while taking different lines of thought, agreed in endorsing the convention, being much impressed by the enthusiasm, common sense and business capacity which characterized the meetings as a whole, also by the quality of the leaders chosen, and by the receipt of the convention by the Government, Board of Trade, city officials, etc.

E. Carswell followed with a brief account of the work done by the new directors.

The agreement re. pork packing plant, sent out by the Dept. of Agriculture, was discussed, and the co-operation of those present was assured whenever Live Stock Commissioner Stevens should come around.

A. SPEARMAN, Sec.-Treas.
